

Christine Hsia is an honors graduate of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music's cello performance program. Prior to college, she performed with the Oakland Symphony Youth Orchestra as the principal cellist, and toured with them to New Zealand and Greece. She also won the role as principal cellist for the California State University East Bay Orchestra and performed solo with the Diablo Valley Philharmonic Orchestra.

She has taught cello and piano privately since 2007 and is affiliated with the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music, the Music Teachers' Association of California, and Steinway & Sons' Educational Partnership Program. Ms. Hsia is currently the principal cellist with the Diablo Symphony in Walnut Creek and working as a volunteer librarian in their school outreach program. For more information, you can visit her website: www.ChristineHsia.com